3. Program description

A. Doing Business in China (4 units)

The primary focus of the Shanghai program is doing business in the People's Republic of China, and the legal system that would govern such transactions. Classes are held at Jiao Tong University, one of China's leading institutions. The course covers essential laws and regulations that govern trade and investment with China, one of the fastest growing economies in the world. The faculty of Jiao Tong University Law School, as well as practicing lawyers from some of China's largest international law firms, will share their expertise. The course covers subjects such as China's legal system, investment, environmental, tax, intellectual property, and labor and employment laws. Classes typically will be held in the morning. Planned field trips such as visits to law firms, the arbitration commission, the stock exchange and multinational companies will be scheduled for some afternoons. There is a welcome dinner as well as other social events. All instruction is in English. The final exam consists of a 3-hour in class exam at the end of the course. The students will have the opportunity on weekends to participate in optional field trips to nearby water towns, famous gardens in Suzhou or the West Lake in Hangzhou.

Students will have the opportunity to participate in possible trips, including:

- To local law firms

- To multinational businesses, such as Intel or eBay
- To an arbitration commission, a court, or the stock exchange

The 2018 program offers externships in the following areas (4-5 units):

Students may secure an externship in major international law offices, corporate legal offices, in-house legal departments, or government agencies. Students with some Mandarin Chinese language skills may choose to extern in Shanghai, Guangzhou, Beijing, and Taipei, though there are a few spots for English only students. You do not need any special language skills for externships in Hong Kong. Students gain practical experience by doing legal work under the supervision of a legal professional in the host country, while receiving invaluable integration into the legal culture of the country and make invaluable professional contacts. The expectation of an intern is full-time work from the period of the externship (e.g., 40 hours or more a week of supervised legal work). Santa Clara Law requires a minimum of 50 hours of supervised legal work for each externship unit of credit.

B. Singapore & Beijing Externships (some Mandarin required)

Multinational US law firms, top rated Chinese firms representing multinationals corporations, or a placement with one of China's premier VC funds.

C. Taipei Externships (some Mandarin required)

Externship opportunities with a large regional law firm that draws its partner membership from large US firms or a top international law firm.

D. Guangzhou Externships (some Mandarin required)

Externship at a branch office of one of China's largest law firms.

E. Hong Kong Externships (no language requirement)
